A WORD FROM THE COLLEGE PRESIDENT

The College of Eastern Idaho continues its upward trajectory. I feel privileged that we are growing our student body and the College's recognition as a place of opportunity in this region. During the 2021-22 academic year, CEI served over 21,200 credit and non-credit (including workforce training) students. This includes more than 3,200 credit-seeking students, an increase of 23 percent from the prior academic year. And of those 3,200, more than 1,300 were early college students, which is an increase of 56 percent from the prior academic year. Notably, our student population has continued to grow while many of our higher education peers, have experienced enrollment declines. CEI recently received a 40,000 sq. ft. trades building from Bonneville County Commissioners and City of Idaho Falls. We have named the building Eastern Idaho Workforce Training Center (EIWTC). It will be used for workforce and trades training.

The strategic direction taken by our programs have continued to bear fruit. For example, CEI was chosen as a national finalist in the Lumina Foundation's Million Dollar Community College Challenge, winning $100,000 for our branding and marketing work. The College also received glowing praise from the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities (NWCCU) on our year-six accreditation Report. Both of these milestones took incredible work, indicate we are headed in the right direction, and applauds the work our staff and faculty do every day.

As you consider a gift to our CEI Foundation, you will be supporting teaching and learning within this institution. Ways you can support the Foundation include: a one-time or reoccurring financial gift, establishing an ongoing endowment, donating appreciated assets such as stocks or property, an IRA minimum distribution, or the gift of your time by volunteering for any of the projects and fundraising activities that the Foundation hosts throughout the year.

Our students will benefit from the results of your generosity. They can take advantage of both existing and new programming at CEI. Our faculty, staff, Board of Trustees, advisory boards, committee members, event volunteers, and Foundation Board of Directors will have more options available for students through your generous gifts. Because of all of you, students enrolled with College of Eastern Idaho are headed toward an even brighter future.

Thank you on behalf of our students whose lives are positively influenced by your generosity.

Sincerely,

Dr. Rick Aman, President of College of Eastern Idaho

FOUNDATION ANNUAL AWARDS

BATTELLE ENERGY ALLIANCE

Corporate Partner of the Year Award - Battelle Energy Alliance

Battelle Energy Alliance, recipient of the 2022 Corporate Partner of the Year award is a great supporter of our community, each year giving more than $500,000 (and counting!) to non-profit organizations in Idaho. CEI and the CEI Foundation have benefitted from BEA's efforts in the form of scholarships, donations of extremely useful equipment, and a major commitment to help build the Future Tech Building on CEI's campus. It is important to note that many of CEI's adjunct faculty work at the Site as well, including this year's Adjunct of the Year recipient.

DON AND JOANN CISSEL ESTATE

Contributor of the Year

Neither Don Cissel nor his wife, Joann Cissel, were born in eastern Idaho, but the Site brought them here in the 1960s where they lived the rest of their lives and raised their two children, Walt and Julia. Don and Joann consistently supported several organizations, in town and included some of their favorites in their estate. The CEI Foundation was just one of those organizations. Don and Joann have both passed away, but they will bless the lives of many people for years to come thanks to their generosity.

BETSEY PITTS

Richard and Lila Jordan Faculty Member of the Year

The list of Betsey Pitts' incredible accomplishments and commitments as a Math instructor is long. She spearheaded the development of a Math class that helps students who are not strong in Math move forward in their program and decrease time to degree. She was an early adopter of "light board" technology at CEI, and created short videos for her students who missed class for health reasons or other issues and posted them online so students wouldn't fall behind. Student comments on these course reviews state that they have "never had a Math teacher like Betsey" and that they "finally understand math after struggling with it before."

BRAD ROTHWELL

Outstanding Adjunct Faculty Award

CEI's adjuncts hold a full-time job somewhere in the community then teach one or more courses online or in the classroom, usually at night. The College relies on adjunct faculty to fulfill our mission and provide quality teaching and learning opportunities for students. The winner of the inaugural award for outstanding adjunct faculty, Brad Rothwell, teaches some of the College's Cybersecurity courses. Brad's awards and certifications are too numerous to mention here, (including several as a Certified Ethical Hacker!) but I think what is most important to point out is that his students have a TSA (Security+) pass rate above 90.

RUBY TAYLOR

Outstanding Staff Member of the Year

CEI has really good people. In the letters nominating Ruby Taylor from the CEI Human Resources office for Outstanding Staff Member, sentiments such as these were common: to know her is to love her; kind, understanding, and helpful; and a ray of sunshine. Nothing more can be said, except perhaps to express how grateful CEI is to have Ruby on our team!

CHANGES COMING TO CEI'S SKYLINE, and how you can help!

When EITC officially transitioned to the College of Eastern Idaho (CEI) the State Board of Education turned over the ownership of the existing 60 acres of campus property and the buildings to the local Board of Trustees. This was a tremendous gain for our entire eastern Idaho community.

With jobs in our region demanding trained technicians, and with the interests of our students at heart, the College began dreaming of a building on campus where state-of-the-art technical training takes place.

That led CEI to the idea of Future Tech, a new career technical education (CTE) building that is the first of its kind in eastern Idaho. It is designed specifically for training a future workforce, beginning as early as high school.

Programs taught in the Future Tech building will earn students an Associate of Applied Science (AAS) and an industry certification. The new facility will also include employer-directed training through CEI's Workforce Training Department. In total, over 1,000 students can be trained and educated in this building annually, making a significant impact on employment opportunities and economic prospects for people and communities in Idaho.

In many cases, students who graduate and join regional employers will earn starting salaries of $27-30 per hour plus benefits. About $34 million has already been raised for Future Tech and $8 million is needed to complete construction. This building will be an integral part of the eastern Idaho community. We hope everyone in our community will support the construction of Future Tech and attend classes or events in the building!

WILL RECEIVE $100,000

On August 17, the College of Eastern Idaho was named one of nine runners-up in The Million Dollar Community College Challenge by the Lumina Foundation to support strategic marketing and brand-building. Madera Community College was named The Million Dollar winner, and the nine runners-up were highlighted in a video announcement.

CEI will receive a $100,000 grant and technical assistance from Noetic Consultants and Statwax to support the college's brand and marketing goals. Hundreds of community colleges nationwide applied for the Challenge, and in April, CEI was named one of 10 finalists.

CEI President Rick Aman said, "College of Eastern Idaho is truly honored to be selected as a finalist in The Million Dollar Community College Challenge, especially as a new and smaller community college. We will use the funding to both brand the college as accessible and affordable, but also remind our region we are engineered so that working adults with real-life responsibilities achieve their chosen degrees and/or high-quality credentials."

In Round 1 of the competition, applicants were required to answer several questions, telling the story of what makes their college unique and exceptional, and what they would do with a million dollars to amplify and improve their brands. In Round 2, the finalists created video narratives and supporting written documents, communicating their value proposition for adult learners. Lumina Foundation sought videos that would creatively convince adult students that attending their local community college is their best decision. All finalist videos are featured on the Challenge website luminafoundation.org/challenge/#finalists

NEW BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Did you know that the CEI Foundation has a board of directors made up entirely of volunteers? In little more than a year there have been a LOT of new members added. Mostly this was because of the terms of previous board members coming to an end. Here's a peek at the new directors.

BRENDA ANDEREGG

What do you do for work?

I help ensure public health & safety with disease prevention, promotion of healthy practices & protection of the public through policy & practice.

What do you do for play?

I like to read, write, travel, movies, good food, my family & fur kids.

Why the CEI Foundation board?

Education is important. Everyone deserves an education. Once you get your education it is yours forever - no one can take it from you.

MIE ANDERSON

What do you do for work?

I have been a registered Radiologic Technologist since 1996.

What do you do for play?

I enjoy being with my family doing almost anything. I love being outside, working on the farm and caring for our animals. My husband and I are new empty-nesters.

I am excited to see what adventures life hold for us!

Why the CEI Foundation board?

It's a unique opportunity to help people achieve their goals. Education is a gift that can alter the course of generations and I am honored to be a small part of that picture.

CASEY JACKMAN

What do you do for work?

Healthcare executive.

What do you do for play?

I love to hike, kayak and camp with my wife and our two Boston terriers.

Why the CEI Foundation board?

I'm a big fan of helping anyone trying to help themselves. I believe that education can not only make a big difference in the student's life but in those they can touch with their education. The CEI Foundation facilitates those looking for a hand up. I love that.

GINA STEVENSON

What do you do for work?

I work for a personal development company.

What do you do for play?

When I'm not at work, you'll find me skiing the 'Ghee with my boys, exploring eastern Idaho with my two dogs, or attempting to golf.

Why the CEI Foundation board?

CEI helps people where they are. I've watched CEI help high school students and other local residents obtain their GEDs and access workforce training to better support their families. The CEI Foundation plays a large role in this. What could be better?

PAM BORJA

What do you do for work?

I am the branch manager and vice president for the WaFd branch in Idaho Falls.

What do you do for play?

I have a Jeep and go off-roading and rock climbing with a local off-road club.

DAVID FREW

What do you do for work?

I provide solutions that help businesses fund growth and succeed financially.

What do you do for play?

I connect with friends, family, and neighbors.

CAROL MASCAREÑAS

What do you do for work?

I am the Environmental, Safety, Health & Quality (ESH&Q) Director for the Idaho National Laboratory. We protect people, facilities and the environment.

What do you do for play?

I enjoy being in the outdoors with my family, especially RZR riding and skiing.

Why the CEI Foundation board?

I have long participated with community programs, including Hispanic Youth Leadership Symposium, and feel that education is very important.

ED CATHER

What do you do for work?

Attorney at Parsons Behle & Latimer

What do you do for play?

Surfing, skiing, cycling, running

SUE ROPE

What do you do for work?

I was an Environmental Health Physicist and worked in radioecology research and historical dose reconstruction.

What do you do for play?

I am active in retirement with interests in travel, family history, philanthropy, reading, birding, and the performing arts. My first granddaughter is just turning one. Following her astonishing changes

Why the CEI Foundation board?

Because it an opportunity to change a student's life by offering scholarships for education.

Why the CEI Foundation board?

I volunteer at CEI to play some small role and witness education empowering individuals and our entire community.

This interest increased when I helped my 91-year-old aunt set up a scholarship fund in memory of an uncle who died at age 21 in WWII. The Army selected him to attend the University of Wisconsin for an accelerated engineering degree, but was deployed into battle before he could finish. He died in combat 6 weeks later. He was the role model for 7 of 11 first-generation siblings to go to college. This experience has made me often reflect on the importance of education and role models in a person's life.

Why the CEI Foundation board?

To make education a reality in the lives of Idahoans.

reminds me of how exhausting and rewarding being a parent is—the best job I ever had.

Why the CEI Foundation board?

The importance of quality education to an engaged and engaging life is an integral part of my core values. CEI's recent expansion is a positive addition to our higher education options. I am happy to serve and contribute to its success!

SCHOLARSHIP

RECIPIENT HIGHLIGHT

Jennie Miller

CEI Foundation scholarship recipient Jennie Miller may not be able to juggle pool balls or torches, but she is married with six kids and is a full-time student so she juggles life.

Jennie's world used to be centered on the other side of Idaho in the Treasure Valley. She got married, started a family, went to cosmetology school, and was a high school dance team coach for several years. Life was good, but a change was coming her way. She felt that Nursing was her true calling and started taking classes as College of Western Idaho.

"My mom was a nurse so it was always on my radar," she says. Her mom had a medical emergency and it reminded her how nurses help people. "When I was a patient, having my babies, and when my mom was in the hospital, I saw how nurses impact people."

In August of 2021 her family moved to Idaho Falls. That and the birth of her sixth child soon after put her nursing plans on hold. "Being a wife and mom is my number one priority. But being educated is also important."

Jennie feels there is more to her educational experience than what she will take from it. She recognizes the impact it can have on her children, ages 13 down to 1. "It shows my kids that they can be part of a big family and be educated, and that they can go after their ambitions."

Sacrifice is another important part of the experience. Everyone has to make some kind of sacrifice. There are some of the kids' activities that she can't make because of homework. But that is OK. She wants to be an example to her kids that they too can struggle to work and do things that are hard.

As the coach of a high school dance team Jennie could tell which team members had to work hard in other areas of their lives and which ones had life easy.

"Life can be fun with lots of things to look forward to, but if you want something big you have to work and go after it."

While difficult, Jennie's CEI experience has been positive. Even though re-learning how to go back to school has its challenges, especially getting a handle on technology, she found the teachers helpful and responsive, and the class sizes have not been overwhelming.

The scholarship she received from the CEI Foundation provides extra motivation. She feels that someone else is counting on her to do her best. Her scholarship also helped reduce stress by lowering her reliance on debt, and helped her feel like her support team is expanded.

After graduation she wants to be a labor and delivery nurse since she loves being with moms and babies at one of the most happy and exciting times of their lives. "Being with babies comes very natural to me. Experience with my babies will help me do this well."

When asked what she would tell her donor if she was able to meet him or her, Jennie's first response was to say "thank you." She followed that with saying that when she is a nurse someday, she hoped her donor would feel the benefit of their donation, not just in the way it helped her, but with all of the patients she will help.

FOUNDATION EVENTS REPORT

THE GREAT RACE FOR EDUCATION - LUCKY 13 EDITION

If you saw people running around Snake River Landing on July 15 in t-shirts of varying colors, and heard extensive cheering coming from The Waterfront Event Center, you were witnessing the unmistakable signs that The Great Race for Education-Lucky 13 Edition was going on. With challenges like stacking seven dice on a tongue depressor while holding it in your mouth, and throwing poker chips into a small bucket tied to someone's head from 20 feet away, runners had the deck stacked against them. This year's winner was the Teton Toyota team, Idaho Environmental Coalition and Idaho Central Credit Union came in second and third respectively. When all of the dust settled, the event raised more than $60,000 to help further the CEI Foundation mission.

SCHOLARSHIP CELEBRATION

The Waterfront at Snake River Landing was the site for the first Scholarship Celebration in three years, thanks to the pandemic. Award winners, donors, and students were celebrated at a great event. It had been so long since the previous Celebration that many of the volunteers and attendees were new to the event's format. It was a great night to bring together the CEI Foundation's many constituents to remember why we do what we do.

BANK OF IDAHO SWING FOR THE GREEN

Held at the Idaho Falls Country Club, this is the premier golf fundraiser in eastern Idaho. Many thanks go to the Bank of Idaho for putting on such a great event for the CEI Foundation scholarship endowment. The fun started at a catered dinner with wine pairings for each course, and good times featuring a live band that went late into the evening. The next morning started out perfect for golf, and 32 teams were ready to "hit it" at the 9:00 start. Eighteen holes of golf was followed by, a catered lunch and a four-hole derby. The great day left everyone excited to do it again next year.
